PRETTY MARRIAGE.

One of the prettiest home weddings the town of Belmont has seen for some time was solemnized by Rev. Charles H. Watson, D. D., of the Arlington Baptist church, on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, in the beautiful and stately home of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester C. Frost on Lake street, at which time their daughter, Gertrude Adelaide Frost was married to Mr. George Edwin Tobey of West Stockbridge. The son, Mr. Harold L. Frost, decorated the home in a handsome and tasty manner with asparagus vines, white hydrangeas, white and colored astors, palms, helianthus, golden rod and salvia.

Promptly at the hour named above, the wedding march was taken up by the bride and groom at the head of the grand staircase. They were preceded by four escorts, Masters Harold Walker of Lynn, Stanley Brown of Belmont, and Misses Dorothy Peck of Providence, R. I., and Helen Porter of Beverly—the boys wearing white suits with a pink string with flowers, while the girls wore pink gowns with a white string with flowers.

At the foot of the staircase the bridal party separated—the bride and girl escorts going through the front parlor, while the groom and boy escorts went to the back parlor where the ceremony was performed in the bay window.

As the bride and groom approached, the escorts parted and let them pass to the altar, but after they were in position they then closed the gap and practically separated them from the assembly. This was a pretty sight, and one of the principal features of the wedding.

This corner was beautifully decorated, it being a perfect bower of asparagus vines, palms and cut flowers, while overhead was a canopy of solid green. While standing at the altar to receive the marriage ceremony the word "Two," of lavender-colored astors, with a green background, appeared, suspended in mid-air directly over the couple, but as soon as Dr. Watson said "I pronounce you man and wife" this disappeared and the word "One," in white astors, dropped into its place. This was neatly and quickly done by the bride's brother, Harold, and was surely a pleasing feature of the happy event.

The bride never looked more beautiful than when she stood at the marriage altar, dressed in a lovely gown of white grosgrain silk, heavily trimmed with silk applique, and wearing a full tulle veil, which was caught up in the hair with clementis, and carrying a large bouquet of bride-roses. There was no bridesmaid or best man.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple received (only the relatives of the contracting parties were present.) A banquet was served at nine o'clock. The ushers were Mr. Harold Frost, brother of the bride, and Mr. Frank Tobey, a brother of the groom.

A surprise was tendered the guests who tried to surprise the couple as they departed. A hack, which was supposed to take them to their destination had been trimmed in an elaborate manner and quantities of rice were in readiness to be showered at them. But this event had been thought of and carefully planned beforehand. While the hack was at the door and each and every one waiting to have his or her share of the fun, an automobile came down the street with great speed, and into this the couple stepped and were off before the surprised and astonished guests could recover themselves, and they found the joke was on them. The couple would not tell their destination, but on their return will reside with the bride's parents.

Many lovely and beautiful presents were bestowed upon the bride. The most noticeable was a gift to the bride from her father of $1100. There were quantities of solid silver, in sets and individually, expensive cut glass, elegant china ware, solid silver berry spoons, pearl-handled silver knives, and several large and expensive pictures. One of the presents was a set of solid silver spoons from her aunt and a dessert spoon and two pieces of china which were 75 and 100 years old, and will, no doubt, be highly prized. There were two elegant Turkish rugs, one of which the couple stood upon when married, by special request of the donor.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Tobey are well known here and receive the hearty congratulations of their friends and the Enterprise, trusting their married lives may be long and happy.

It is a pleasure to know that the general wish of both Lexington and Arlington is to confer the honor of a third term in the House of Representatives on Representative J. Howell Crosby. In consequence thereof, a joint convention of the Lexington and Arlington Republican town committees was held in Cary hall, Lexington, last Saturday evening. After some discussion, it was finally decided to change the dates so Arlington would have the naming in 1901 and 1902, and Lexington the two following years. The thanks of the Lexington committee were given the Arlington committee for the courteous and kindly treatment of the matter. Congratulations were extended to Mr. Crosby and assurances given of untiring efforts on their part to secure his re-election.

CHURCH WEDDING.

The first wedding to occur in St. Malachy's church since the addition and the new altar was erected took place Tuesday morning at nine o'clock. The happy couple were Mr. Augustus F. Crowley of 11 Harvard street, Arlington Heights, and Miss Nellie A. Doyle of 83 Medford street, Arlington. Rev. J. M. Mulcahy performed the marriage ceremony, and was the celebrant at the high mass which followed.

The church was filled with relatives and friends who were invited to witness the ceremony. The beautiful marble altar looked very pretty with its innumerable candles and beautiful flowers.

Rosewig's mass was sung, Miss K. T. McGrath singing the solo parts, while at the offertory Mrs. Gertrude Wing sang "Ave Marie" by Henshaw Dana. Mrs. Charles Beauchemin, contralto, sang the response and also sang the duet with Miss McGrath.

The bride was met in the vestibule by the bridegroom, and, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, which was finely executed by Miss Lucy J. Butler, the church organist, walked slowly up to the altar, the ushers, Mr. Daniel A. Purcell and Mr. Herbert Brine, acting as escorts. The bride-maid, Miss Mary F. Doyle, a sister of the bride, very becomingly attired in a gown of white muslin, carrying pink roses, and the groom, preceded the bride and bridegroom, Mr. Arthur S. Crowley.

The bride was very prettily attired and looked beautiful in a white muslin gown trimmed with real valenciennes lace, the bottom of the skirt being finished with very fine accordin pleating, and wore the usual long tulle veil, which was caught up in her coiffure with orange blossoms. Instead of the usual bouquet of brides' roses, the bride carried a pearl prayer-book. The Mendelssohn "Wedding march" was played as the bridal party retired.

Immediately after the wedding ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's mother at 83 Medford street, where a wedding breakfast which Caterer N. J. Hardy had prepared in his usual pleasing manner, was partaken of. A reception from 11.30 to 2.30 followed immediately after, at which were present some 70 guests. The house was tastefully trimmed with potted plants and cut flowers.

The presents were innumerable and beautiful. Mr. Pettingill, for whom the bride had been a trusted and highly respected stenographer for nine years in his immense advertising establishment, was present at the wedding and also attended the reception. His present to the bride was $100 in gold. Mrs. Pettingill accompanied him, and her gift to the bride, an appropriate one, was a very handsome pocket-book. She also received $50 from the groom's parents. Her office associates sent a most beautiful solid silver berry set, all monogrammed, in a very handsome green silk covered satin lined box. Mrs. Doyle's gift was a handsome oak chamber set. Numerous individual presents were received from her friends where she was employed. Mr. Wetherell, former manager of the Pettingill advertising agency, and a staunch friend of the bride, sent a set of handsome dining-room chairs. There were silver spoons, berry spoons, knives and forks, bon-bon dishes, carving sets, a handsome candelabra, several pieces of fine cut glass, china ice cream sets, a mahogany center table, and many beautiful pictures. The groom's friends at Harvard library sent a very expensive and elegantly framed picture.

The bride and groom, amid an unusual shower of rice, departed in a hack which their friends had gaudily decorated with ribbons and flowers, for the White Mountains to spend their honeymoon. After their return they will reside on Carver street, Cambridge.

ALL HEARTS ARE STIRRED.

All hearts are stirred at the overwhelming calamity that has befallen Texas. That thousands of lives have been carried away in that terrible flood, and that other thousands have been made homeless thereby, appeal alike to all our people. Yes, there is a better side to human nature. In the hour of greatest distress we are all brothers. At this supreme moment in the appalling experiences of Galveston no one is stopping to inquire how Texas is likely to vote in the coming presidential election. Political parties, however much opposed to each other in the strife that is already on, now come together as one man, asking with bated breath "what can we do in giving consolation to that army of afflicted ones, and so somewhat relieve their sufferings?" The immediate and generous aid that is now being extended to Texas by the whole country is that divine revelation of the human heart which asserts the relationship existing between the human and the Christ-man.

Men and women have not fallen from their first estate. No, no; but they have come into possession of that larger Eden where they may learn and so come to know all things. To establish the brotherhood of man, it is only necessary that we recognize that misfortune and dire calamity come to all alike. Helpless and alone, every man is our brother and every woman is our sister. In our darkest hour we need no introduction one to another. It is then, an immediate grasp of the hand. President McKinley bespoke all hearts in his touching and tender message sent to the governor of Texas, saying, "The reports of the great calamity which has befallen Galveston and other points on the coast of Texas excite my profound sympathy for the sufferers, as they will stir the hearts of the whole country. Whatever help it is possible to give shall be gladly extended."

There will unquestionably be strenuous efforts made in every village and town throughout the country, and this too without a moment's delay, to send help to that suffering and afflicted people, and in this humane work Arlington we know, will show herself among the first. These terrible calamities bring with them the rarest opportunities in doing good. He most lives who lives for others. Our individual lives to achieve the most must be intertwined with other lives. We repeat that human nature has its better and its Christ-like side. It will always be reached by the pitiful cry of one in distress. Its heart is always open to the unfortunate and the afflicted. We are all part and portion of the infinite one, so that when any of God's children are in sore distress we are all there to help. The prayer today is on every lip that God may abundantly help and sustain that army of mourners in Texas, and that he may bring to those bereaved ones the entire American people, bearing with them their innermost hearts and their richest material gifts.

THE COMPLETED CENSUS.

That portion of the census just completed throughout the country in which we as a locality are most interested is the counting of heads in Boston and its suburbs. The enumeration as returned shows a healthful and substantial gain in Boston and surrounding towns. In some of the suburbs the increase of population has been remarkable—in some instances showing a gain of more than 200 per cent. within the last decade. As a whole, however, our growth has been constant and sure. New England never does things in a spasmodic way. She doesn't work by fits and starts. She keeps on the even tenor of her way, and by so doing she invariably gets there. And all this is especially true of Boston and vicinity.

Our modern Athens of America is always content to do well, so she is a good deal satisfied with her more than 500,000 of good, sensible men, women and children. Had she followed the not well-founded, in our estimation, example of New York and Chicago and so annexed all the out-lying districts within reach, she would have today a population of more than 800,000 inhabitants. But the more conservative people of the state of Massachusetts believe in the preservation intact of her individual history as localities. Arlington is wise in refusing to lose her proud and historic identity in being swallowed up by Boston, and besides she with other near towns to the city is far better off financially and educationally, and in every other material and immaterial way by maintaining its own individuality. It is false, in spite of the fable, that there is necessarily increased strength in multiplied numbers. Quite the contrary is this true. The greater New York is not now as sure of her own as she was before the annexed portions were added to her municipal possessions. There is at this moment in that greatest of all American cities a discontent which threatens to reduce the city to its original limits at no distant day. Large bodies are unwieldy, and their interests become so diverse that a uniform and satisfactory legislation is nearly or quite impossible. "Don't bite off more than you can chew" is perhaps a vulgar saying, but it contains nevertheless the wisest philosophy. Boston is all right with her present count, and so are the towns to and around Boston. Now let each, both city and suburb, be content with what they have of territory, and never for a moment entertain the thought of "keeping what it's got and catching what it can."

HOW KINDLY NATURE IS.

How kindly nature is in all her wonderful adaptations to the wants of man! She invariably comes to his help in the very nick of time, and not only this, for she comes bringing him that abundant aid which he most needs. The return of the seasons in their order is the full assurance that nature never forgets her promises. Seed time and harvest are the fulfillment of her pledged word. We were strikingly reminded the other evening of her everlasting "yea, yea and nay, nay" as we saw one of these northern farmers gathering in his golden grain by the light of this harvest moon. It is during this September moon that both the heavens and the earth are flooded in our latitude with that softened, bewitching light which glorifies all things.

David was unquestionably a lover of the brilliant moon which lighted up in so resplendent a way those eastern lands. The psalmist says: "The sun shall not smite thee by day nor the moon by night." It was formerly supposed that the rays of the moon had in that far eastern country some peculiar, unhappily effect upon the human brain, so that, as is well known, our word "lunatic" has come from the word "luna," which is the Latin for our word moon. Poets have sung in sweetest notes of this full-orbed queen of the night! These magnificent evenings that we have been having for the past week or more have touched, we are sure, all hearts. Have you ever stood of an evening on the very tip of Arlington Heights when the harvest moon was at its full? If not, then do not fail to make your way to Dr. Ring's sanatorium when the hunters' moon is on, for that is quite the equal of our harvest moon.

Forty years ago we used to frequently find our way of an evening to the very spot now occupied by Dr. Ring that we might take in that far-reaching landscape as seen by moonlight from what is now the site of his sanatorium. It must be remembered that from that height of ground to which we refer there is a skirt of horizon to be seen nearly or quite three hundred miles in circumference. The magnificent view had is picturesque and inspiring beyond expression as seen in the daytime, but the rare picture seen by the softened rays of the September or October moon is intensely emphasized. We well remember that dreamy and charming outlook, as seen so many years ago, and during the past two years we have frequently and enthusiastically reviewed the scene. Arlington is rich in her scenic surroundings, and that Arlingtonian who is not familiar with her many physical attractions has and is losing a wealth of beauty, the existence and nearness of which he little dreams. These glorious evenings we have been having make us altogether demonstrative in our enthusiastic joy. And why should we not be demonstrative?

A friend, thoroughly appreciative of this outward world of ours in all its varied and sublime forms, asks us substantially if one might not in a passive way equally enjoy all that which we so loudly applaud, and thus quietly take in with eye and ear, and appreciate it to the full, all the wonderful manifestations that God has made of himself in nature? And our friend adds "still waters run deep." But our good friend should remember that the deeper the waters the more likely are they to overflow their banks. David says, "O, clap your hands, all ye people," and again he says, "make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands." We are aware that to us all come occasionally those deeply meditative moments when we most of all enjoy to take in by ourselves all alone all that is best and grandest about us. But these moments are the exception. Our joys are multiplied and heightened as we share them in an objective way with somebody else. So we swing our hat the highest and shout our loudest for what we so much admire on our way.

O, these evenings! in Arlington as well as among the mountains—who can describe them? They are nature in her most attractive mood of invitation and of dreamy charm, set to the sweet melody of the autumn time. It was the Rev. Dr. Swain, at one time pastor of the Baptist church here in Arlington, who, years ago, said to us as we two were walking up Mass. avenue on a delightful September evening when the crickets were all atune: "Mr. Palmer, all nature at this season of the year is vocal with the praises of God."

It will remain forever true that our better natures at this autumn time of the year are more entirely in sympathy and love with all that is most beautiful and excellent in all God's world. It is now that we all devoutly join with nature in her grand symphony of worship.

ALL ALONG THE SKIES.

The political thunders are beginning to be heard all along the skies. Every four years it is claimed in stentorian voice that the country is in danger, that the constitution is being ignored, and that all things of a national character are likely to be snatched. Well, out of all this turmoil and violent speech-making it will be found on the morning succeeding the election of Nov. 6 that the country is safe, whichever one of the two great political parties may succeed at the polls.

And herein is found that fortunate and leading characteristic of a government like ours. It doesn't matter how hot the political campaign may wax, it doesn't count that the two great political parties make faces at each other and call each other hard names, a week after the result at the polls is declared all is peace and quiet, and the opposing parties are found shaking hands. We have a government so elastic that it can easily stand the jolts and bumps and strain of a heated campaign, and then come out of it all serene and smiling. And the reason of all this is that the several political parties are pretty well agreed on all that is fundamental under a republican form of government.

The noise and strife of the average campaign relate for the most part to methods in the executive management at Washington. Roosevelt and Bryan in their speeches on Labor day in Chicago talked much like twin brothers. Roosevelt said on that occasion: "We must beware of any attempt to make hatred in any form the basis of action. Our prime need as a nation is that every American should understand and work with his fellow-citizens, getting into touch with them." W. J. Bryan said: "Our desire should be not to separate the people into warring factions but to bring them into better acquaintance and greater sympathy with each other." And so on throughout the two speeches do Roosevelt and Bryan enunciate the same great truths. So we repeat, that in all that is fundamental to us as a nation the different political parties are substantially a unit. So let the political thunder do its worst, no one need stand from under, for as a people we are safe let who may, whether McKinley or Bryan, come on top.

A STEP FORWARD.

That more is to be done in our public schools in the department of art is a step forward. Art, if it be art, is always an introduction to nature, so that anything which helps us to better understand and appreciate God's immeasurable universe is a positive gain in all educational work. The eye is the supplement to this great big world of ours. To see is to know beyond questioning. Our Arlington schools have about them the spirit of an earnest and intelligent inquiry, and herein is found their greatest promise. The best things will be found so long as we shall hunt for the best things. A man usually secures that for which he is looking, and it is in no way different with our public institutions of learning. So long as our public schools keep up their search for all that is latest and best in the educational world, just so long will they continue at the front. Art in her teaching must always proclaim and reflect nature, for nature alone is perfected art.

WE RESPECTFULLY SUGGEST.

We respectfully but earnestly suggest to our school board the eminent fitness and propriety in having the school year begin hereafter on or about the 20th of September instead of as now on the Wednesday following Labor day. Some of the hottest and most unendurable weather in our latitude comes between the 1st and 20th of September, and this year is proving no exception to the rule. This week has been cruelly severe upon every teacher and pupil in Arlington. We are quite sure that the patrons of our schools would heartily sustain our school board were it to make the change we suggest. And we cannot question that Supt. Sutcliffe and Principal Holt would give it their hearty approval, and we know the pupils would vote for the change with both hands up. Now what has the honorable school board to say about it?

AN EXHAUSTIVE PAPER.

President McKinley's letter of acceptance of his re-nomination to the presidency is on the whole an able and exhaustive state paper, and there can be no question that it will serve his party in the political campaign now upon us. Whatever else may be affirmed or denied of Mr. McKinley, no one will attempt to gainsay his ability. We shall never forget how we heard him for three hours in the Harrison campaign, discuss the tariff in the Brooklyn (L. I.) Rink before an audience of 10,000, and an abler speech we never heard. Yes, President McKinley is an able man, and one of the ablest politicians either in this or any other country.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Thirty cent gas for Chicago! Phew! By all means let a cheaper gas fever strike Arlington.

Maine has gone Republican, but the vote stands with a decrease of 15 per cent from that of '96. The Democratic gain is 25 per cent.

The news from Cape Town say the Boer war is about over. We heard the same thing months ago, but the plucky Boers are still in the fight.

The old Tammany ring seems to be again on top in New York state, with Croker and Murphy at the helm. But then what's the difference between this and the Platt ring? One is as bad as another.

The West Indian storm of Saturday wrought fearful havoc in the city of Galveston, Texas. If the report is true, the loss of life and property is fearful. It proved, indeed, a hurricane of great magnitude.

The coal miners' strike has been deferred for a time. A few more days of starvation wages for the miners and a chance for the mine owners to bleed them—and this in a free and liberal land like ours.

It has been remarked oftentimes that "A man must be losing his mind when he refuses more money." Dr. Lorimer still retains all his faculties, but still he refuses a $1000 raise. Good for the doctor. Let more go and do likewise.

President McKinley has accepted the nomination for a second term of office in an able letter to the chairman of the notification committee, Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge. His few but forcible words on the trusts are practically to the point, but we very much doubt if his followers will do anything to crush them out.

ARLINGTON NEWS.

Hereafter, all preliminary notices of church fairs, socials, etc., to which an admission fee is asked, will only be inserted in these columns at the rate of 10 cents per line, unless an advertisement of such appears in our advertising columns.

Miss Olivia Tolman resumes teaching Oct. 1.

Mr. Robert H. Fall has gone to Conway, N. H., for a month of hunting.

Misses Helen C. and Annie W. Wood returned home last week from the west.

Mr. Martin Davis of Jersey city, is visiting Mr. Thomas E. Stephenson of 251 Mass. avenue.

We are informed that Mr. W. W. Rawson has purchased the Tillson estate on Broadway.

The Atwood families have left the Robbins Spring hotel and taken up their abode in Cambridge.

The registrar's of voters will hold their first meeting for registering voters on the 21st of this month.

The hearing on the Boston & Concord railroad occurs Monday evening. There should be a full attendance.

It is hardly possible that there will be a football team in the High school this year, but a polo team is assured.

We printed and sold 2400 copies of the Enterprise last week. No other town paper can touch us on circulation.

All of the regular services began at the Universalist church last Sunday and will be continued from Sunday to Sunday.

Mr. William Burton Robinson, who formerly lived in Arlington, will be the soloist at the Universalist church tomorrow morning.

Mrs. Harry W. Bullard and family, accompanied by Mr. Wilson Palmer, will return to their Arlington home next Saturday.

The Baptist society on Monday evening voted to build their new church of stone at a cost of $60,000. New plans are to be made.

Mr. Washington Kimball will soon return from his summer home and take up an abode at his home in Boston instead of Arlington.

Division 23, A. O. H., will hold a social in A. O. H. hall, Chestnut street, on Thursday evening. Dancing will be engaged in from 9 till 2.

At the meeting of Post 36, Thursday evening it was voted to give Camp 45 the use of their hall for one Wednesday in the month free.

Mrs. F. A. Roberts, formerly of this town but now of Portland, Me., is visiting her son Fred. Mr. Roberts, who has a fine position in the city of Portland, is expected on soon.

Division 43, A. O. H., will hold their annual ball on Thanksgiving eve. The committee are making plans for a good time. This division is well known for its excellently-arranged dances.

Mr. Fred Damon lost his second race on the Charles last evening. He was not in proper condition, and had not the time for practice. He takes defeat in a very sportsmanlike manner.

Our courteous letter-carrier, Mr. Wm. A. McNeal, resumed his duties yesterday morning after a pleasant vacation of two weeks at Clinton, Mass., and vicinity. He enjoyed himself immensely.

Don't think because cold weather is coming that you can do without ice cream. It is just as essential that you serve Kimball's unexcelled ice cream to your guests in winter as in the summer.

With the influx of our town's people from the shore, country and mountains, business will soon resume its normal condition. On the whole this has been a summer long to be remembered by the average business man.

On Sunday evening, Sept. 23, in the Unitarian church, the renowned Fisk University singers will give a sacred concert, under the auspices of the Unitarian, Orthodox Congregational and Universalist churches. Full particulars next week.

Rev. J. M. Mulcahy and Rev. A. J. Fitzgerald were present at the consecration of St. James' church, Haverhill, on Sunday. In the pontifical high mass which followed, Fr. Mulcahy attended Archbishop Williams, who celebrated the mass, as deacon.

The Baptist society held their first service in Grand Army hall, their temporary home, last Sunday. The attendance was very large and the chorus singing was excellent. Dr. Watson preached a very able sermon, taking as his subject, "In tents with Jehovah."

The case of John T. Gynan, who was arrested for selling books to coachmen and they claiming he misrepresentation, came up Monday morning in the Cambridge court. As the judge would not allow the evidence of but one and the prosecution not having any show, he was acquitted.

A new switch-board is being placed in the telephone exchange and will be the same size as the one now in use. The increasing business on the board now in use makes it hard work for the operators, but by placing the new one, which will double the capacity of work, it will ease them up largely.

Tomorrow morning a large party of Odd Fellows from Bethel lodge will go by electric to Worcester and visit the Odd Fellows' home at this city. They will leave the center about 7 a. m. All brothers of the order are asked to join the party. It is hoped a large number will go.

There was a small attendance on Monday evening at the street hearing, called by the selectmen. The streets to be heard on were those on Whittemore park, lately opened, but as the same had not been made according to town by-laws action was deferred until such time when they should be properly laid out.

ADVERTISE

The police register gives the following: William Dunsford and John Hanlon for disturbing the peace, $10, the former committed; William Mulagh, disturbing the peace, $5; Edward Magoun, John Reagan, Arthur Carrington, Ernest Bailey, for willful trespass, all of Boston, the two former were fined $2 each while the latter two cases were continued till the 19th.

The American Express Co. have notified us through their agent, Mr. F. W. Smerage, that all parcels or boxes of food or clothing, or amounts of money directed to the mayor or relief committee at Galveston, Texas, will be carried free by them. Now let our well-to-do citizens and all others who can, send a substantial amount of money and all the food and clothing they can so this stricken city.

Dr. W. A. Greene is soon to change his office and will have rooms in the Finance building on the same floor with Dr. Clock's dental office. There will be three rooms, consisting of a reception room consultation room and private office. This will be central and a good location for Dr. Greene's increasing practice.

In this week's issue will be found the advertisement of Mr. James A. McWilliams who has entered the field of painting, decorating and paper hanging for himself. For some time he has been in the employ of Mr. Charles Hardy and is a capable and experienced man. All orders may be left at F. R. Daniel's periodical store, 606 Mass. av., and will receive prompt attention.

By a typographical mistake, the name of Mr. William B. Wood instead of that of Mr. William E. Wood should have been used in our issue of Sept. 1 in the announcement of the purchase of extra land for the Baptist church site. We understand that Mr. Blake donates the Tufts lot to the society, while Mr. and Mrs. Hornblower with Mr. William B. Wood contribute largely towards the purchase of the Shattuck or rear lot.

Whittemore park, as it is now known by, but formerly the old Whittemore estate, at the lower end of the town, adjoining the Butterfield estate and running to the brook, is fast becoming transformed from farming land to desirable building lots. The property has been surveyed by Mr. C. E. Gannett of Academy street, and is under the management of Mr. Thomas Tolson. The vast estate covers some 38 acres, running from Mass. avenue to the railroad. There are six streets, namely: Magnolia, Thornlike, Lafayette, Fairmount, Park boulevard and Lake avenue.

Wednesday the town was visited by a high wind which could well be called a small hurricane as the wind blew at the rate of 80 miles an hour. Comparatively little damage was done in and about the town. The fruit trees which were exposed to the high winds lost a large quantity of their fruit and that which is left will be apt to bring high prices on this our native fruit. The telephone people were inconvenienced more or less by crossed wires, some 57 lines being crossed up, thus affecting 150 subscribers. The beautiful flower beds of Station agent Morrow, which he had taken so much pains with and were sure to bring him first prize, were greatly damaged.

Past Commander Sylvester C. Frost returned last week from his trip to Chicago where he went to attend the National encampment and was on the Dept. Commanders staff in the parade. After the encampment he went to Louisville, Ky., and was an honored guest of Dr. P. H. Henderson, whose acquaintance he made 3 years ago while the encampment was held in that city. Mr. Frost is very enthusiastic over his visit and speaks in the highest terms of their southern hospitality, and says the doctor is the most hospitable man he has ever met. Everything was done to make his four or five days visit of the greatest pleasure.

Monday morning at 5.30 o'clock Mr. John C. Waage, in company with one of his men, placed the falls on the spire of the Unitarian church and commenced painting the same. A few bystanders witnessed this feat, which to say the least was a perilous one, but Mr. William Sawyer, who did the trick (for trick it is, as Mr. Waage will not reveal it), thought nothing of this climb, and seemed to be perfectly at ease while painting on his lofty perch. The church is to be given two coats. Wednesday afternoon Mr. Sawyer could not work on account of the heavy winds. The insurance people have refused to allow any burning off of paint on the church, which is surely a wise course to pursue.

On Wednesday evening a jolly birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Neville, 72 Broadway, the occasion being the third anniversary of their little daughter Helen's birth. Ice cream and cake was served, and after a few choice selections by Mr. P. H. Keefe on the violin, singing and dancing was indulged in by the invited guests. Just before time for the guests to leave for home, Mr. D. J. O'Leary, a well-known dancer of Roxbury, assisted by Miss Winnie Sullivan, also of Roxbury, did a cake walk in a very creditable manner. This ended the festivities of the evening, and the guests took cars for home at 11 p. m. The happy party included Mr. and Mrs. William Hayes of Charlestown, Mr. D. J. O'Leary and Miss Winnie Sullivan of Roxbury, Miss Alice Dunton and Mr. and Mrs. P. H.

Keefe of West Somerville, Miss Ellen Kane of Dedham and Mr. Edward Riley of Arlington.

Monday morning Supt. Kimball had his men and the steam roller at work on Broadway, and the same is being pushed vigorously. Mr. W. N. Winn has charge of the men. Great progress has been made in plowing up and removing the gravel. The tracks are all paved and the teaming is being done on them. Work on the bridge is progressing slowly the tide interfering with the laying of the stone abutments. The electric light poles have been removed to the cemetery so as to make clear digging but they will be reset after the bridge and street have been completed. The embankment along the cemetery wall will be of block granite and will reach a level near the center gate. No one at the present time can realize the marked and improved appearance the new grade will make all along the road the cuts not being of a depth to spoil the adjoining property. This route to Boston will be a popular and paying one and it will be the means of putting on the market acres of most desirable building land.

While in Cambridge Wednesday morning we made a friendly call on our former fellow townsman, Mr. Andrew F. Christian, who is now located at 770 Mass. avenue, opposite the City hall. A most cordial greeting was accorded us, and during our stay we had the pleasure of being enlightened on his new $500 electric medical machine. This machine is one of the largest made, it having ten plates of immense size. It is indeed a wonderful machine, and with it he has cured innumerable cases of paralysis, rheumatism, etc. The treatment is a very pleasant one to receive. We know this, as it was applied to us, some twelve varieties in all, there being the cold and hot air currents, the paralytic treatment, the rheumatic treatment, the throat, ear, eye, etc., treatment. Our interest in this machine was fully satisfied. Dr. Christian also exhibited and explained Crook's x-ray light. With this machine he has plainly discovered particles in the hands and body, and removed the same. Cambridge people speak very highly of his methods of massage, electrical and hot air treatments. One gentleman told us he had paralysis and paid out hundreds of dollars to doctors, but who said his case was hopeless, but Dr. Christian entirely cured him, and he said he was now in perfect health. We were pleased to find our friend prospering so finely, and he deserves it all, for he has been a conscientious and faithful student to his methods which are now bringing him fame. He has been offered positions within a few weeks to go to Kansas Hot Springs, which would yield him $10,000 a year, but we know the doctor is on the road to wealth, for he has a method of treatment which will do it.

Correspondence.

Sugar Hill Farm, N. H., Sept. 12, 1900.

Dear Enterprise:

Here a party of us from Mountside cottage, with friends from Echo cottage, are guests this perfect September afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Powers at this delightful summer home, Sugar Maple farm. Our hosts are among the most agreeable and hospitable of their kind. Mr. Powers has been for the past twenty years a prominent business man in Boston, but is now about to make his home in Ohio, where he is to become a member of a large syndicate in the dry goods trade. We wish it were possible to even approximately describe the unique situation of this more than picturesque home.

We may say at the outset that the drive of seven miles from Mountside cottage to Sugar Maple farm is one of the most attractive in all this region. The way leads through woods of primeval growth, and then through stretches of open country, winding and twisting at frequent intervals, so that new views are constantly revealing themselves. And then the long and almost perpendicular hills that we climb and the steeply that we descend to reach this little Eden, shut in by the mountains on every side, beget that enthusiasm which partially expends itself in a long series of tumultuous and triumphant shouts. The last two miles of our ride are along a charming rustic road shaded on either side by the maple and the pine, with here and there a country home, telling of peaceful quiet and happiness. As we go up and up and still up this mountainous road we occasionally look back, only to exclaim, "what a marvellous scene!"

At the very tip-top of the hill is seen this delightful home we are now visiting. The house is situated in a generous stretch of intervals, completely surrounded by the mountains. Comfortably seated upon the inviting verandah of Sugar Maple home, there are to be seen directly in front of us the Ossipee mountains, the Gilmanton mountains, Red Hill, the Holderness mountains, while Israel mountain comes immediately to our right, then comes the Sandwich range, including Black, Young, White Face, Passaconway, and to all this must be added that bewitching view that one has of Lake Winnepesaukee and Red Hill pond. As one sits on this most delightful of September days and looks up to these majestic heights, and then stretches his gaze over this peaceful intervals and catches sight here and there in the distance of the country home resting so quietly at the foot of those over-towering mountains, he feels that here he would live and here he would die. For the moment at least the thought of again going out into the great, busy world and there once more engaging in its strife and sharp competition becomes altogether distasteful and repellant to him. In this haven of rest should we delight to live on and on indefinitely. The situation we cannot describe. No mortal man can. To know it and appreciate it it must either be seen or vision-like, it must come into view as did the New Jerusalem reveal itself to John on the Isle of Patmos.

The farm is rightly known as Sugar Maple farm, as something like four tons of sugar may be made annually from its maple grove. For nearly the past 25 years Mr. and Mrs. Powers with their daughter have spent the summer in this their paradise on earth. Mr. Powers is never idle during his vacations. He believes that rest is found in a variety of work, so he has been all these years busy in improving his more than 100 acres under the shadow of these mountains. He has growing upon his place almost every variety of berry feel like heartily congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Powers that they are about to sell so beautiful a home that they make their residence in Ohio. While we are not financially interested in the place, and while we are not advertising it, yet we cannot but be surprised that this farm, so charmingly situated, with its more than 100 acres of land, with its large spacious house, with its barn and out-buildings in good condition, can be purchased for $1300, the furniture going with the house.

O, these mountains and these heavens, who can ever tire of them? "They are new every morning and fresh every evening." Their manifold speech is a perpetual song, and their story tells of the omnipotent and the infinite. The longer we remain here the more do we cry aloud to these everlasting heights in voice attuned to all praise. Our afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Powers is one of the most enjoyable events of our stay among the mountains, and we shall long remember their kind hospitality to us.

If any one of the readers of the Enterprise should ever feel inclined to say that we are over-enthusiastic in writing of these mountains, let such an one come and stand as we have done under their far-reaching shadows, and then look up to the heights "from whence cometh my help." And then let his vision stretch itself adown this long peaceful valley, taking in the far-off hills in Maine, and then let him sit in wondrous amazement and in rapturous delight as he sees this full-orbed September moon, the queen of the night, gracefully making her way up from out the eastern skies, shedding a halo of her softened silvery light upon mountain and valley, and then tell us if we are over-enthusiastic. Why, if our readers only knew of the unbounded enthusiasm that we have kept back for their sakes alone then would they wonder at the comparative tameness of our language. And a choice variety of apples. The house is ample and roomy, and makes one of the cosiest of homes. We do not There can be no one so dead to God's wonderful manifestations of himself as revealed in this northern country without receiving a new life. Here he must be born again, or otherwise he could not take in this newer world of revelation and inspiration, so that our letters to the Enterprise from this locality have been written under the spell of that exquisite charm born of these grand old sentinels which so majestically stand watch and guard over all. While we shall leave them with many a regret, their memory, we are sure, will remain with us, a blessed inheritance forevermore.

WILSON PALMER.

GOLF CLUB.

There will be a single stick match on the local links today. It will be a nine-hole play. Play for women called at 10 a. m. and for men at 3 p. m.

Mr. John H. Hardy, Jr., and Mr. Jere Colman, Jr., as first prize contestants in the Labor day tournament, played the finishing match on the links on Monday afternoon. The former won, with two up in his favor. The second prize was won by Mr. James A. Bailey, Jr., who played with Mr. Robert Bacon, and defeated him five up. The prizes were handsome silver cups suitably inscribed.

Today the team will go to Hull. Last Saturday afternoon the Medford team was expected to play here, but word was received at the last moment that they were unable to come.

On Saturday last the very pleasant hops, which were so much enjoyed in the early part of the summer, were resumed, and many of our young people renewed acquaintanceship after the vacation. To the enchanting music furnished by the pianist, the dancing on the verandah was heartily engaged in. There was a round meet at the club house at the close of the afternoon events, and the usual five o'clock refreshments were served by Misses Esther Babson and Elizabeth Smith.

A new green for putting and driving contests, which are special features of interest to spectators, has lately been laid out. The green is quite near to the piazza, so that the occupants will have a good opportunity of witnessing the contests.

No Glasses at all

Is certainly better than to have the wrong kind; for by using those which are unsuitable, new errors of refraction are caused. But with the right glasses, original, progressive or acquired errors are corrected and pass away as if they had never existed. I take great pains with my corrections and my fittings, and make no charge for thorough examinations.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

Miss Mary Dunlap went to Nova Scotia last week.

Miss Mary J. Copeland is improving slowly but surely.

Miss E. F. Bennett has returned from a visit to Rochester.

Mrs. Thomas Manley is spending a few days at Worcester.

Miss E. H. Bartol, who has been ill for some time, is improving.

Mrs. Knowlan will spend the next three weeks at Fort Fairfield, Me.

After a rather serious illness, Mrs. E. P. White is now greatly improved.

The Sunshine club met at the home of Mrs. H. A. Gorham on Wednesday.

We understand that Mr. H. W. Peirce will set up in business as a veterinary surgeon in Waltham.

The post office receipts are steadily growing, so Postmaster Blanchard informs us. This is good news.

Mr. Jack Taylor has sold his beautiful house at the corner of Cliff and Oakland streets to Mr. Cyrus E. Dallin.

Kimball's unexcelled ice cream, made only at Arlington Heights, is a very fine article. Try it for yourself.

Box 52 was pulled in yesterday at 11.38 for a small brush fire back of Mr. Jacob Schuhmaker's on Crescent hill.

Mr. Walter B. Farmer's bay gelding Bengen, Jr., and Arlington were in the trotting and pacing races on Wednesday.

Mrs. Stevens is at present the guest of her brother, Mr. George Tewsbury. She has been spending the season at Saratoga.

There is every prospect for a large amount of building here next spring. The heights is fast becoming a center of its own.

Mr. J. Prescott Gage and family returned on Wednesday from the state of Maine where they have been during the past summer.

The annual business meeting of the Baptist church for the election of officers will be held in the church on Monday evening.

Miss Ethel Tewksbury still continues to enjoy her visit at Moricux, L. I. Before returning home she will visit Washington and New York.

Mr. Chas. Cashman has bought out the Peirce milk business and has also leased the farm which is occupied by Mrs. Leander Peirce and son.

Mr. James E. Brown of Dow road had his house in Lexington destroyed by fire Wednesday, it being so badly gutted that it will have to be torn down. The first meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church, after the summer vacation, was held in the church parlor on Tuesday afternoon.

Postmaster Blanchard, Letter-carrier Clementson and C. F. Lombard went fishing up the Concord river on Tuesday, the result being a creditable string.

We are informed from good authority that the proposed new car house will not be started this fall, but an addition will be built on to the rear of the old one.

The woods near the reservoir were set on fire Monday evening, and burned up to the Winship farm. It came near setting the barn, which borders on the woodland.

At the usual meeting of the Congregational church Y. P. S. C. E. at 6.30 tomorrow evening, there will be special music and an address by Dr. C. J. Allen of Winchester.

Grading is practically completed on both sides of the Park avenue bridge and a few teams have passed over it. It is thought the same will be opened to travel next week.

The sewer department is making connections on Forest street in conjunction with Mass. avenue. Good judgment is being displayed by putting in so large a size of piping.

Last Saturday evening Miss Helen Atwood gave a dancing party at Robbins Spring hotel, which was enjoyed by a number of our young people, as well as by several from the heights.

Don't fail to attend the railroad hearing in Town hall Monday evening, and see whether or not it is a wise plan to track Lowell street. We think it a mistake and ought not be granted.

When looking at the new bridge from afar up Park avenue all one can think of is a cart load of dirt, gravel and stone dumped in a heap. It will be "an eyecore and a pain forever" to look upon.

Tomorrow the services at the Baptist church, corner of Westminster and Park avenues, are: Preaching at 10.45 a. m., Sunday school at 12 m., evening service at 7 p. m. Rev. A. W. Lorimer, pastor.

A dog belonging to Mr. M. S. Drew bit a young lad by the name of Clyde Spencer, Sunday. Dr. Dennett was called. The father, who is a motorman on the B. E. R. R., has ordered that the dog be shot.

Mr. Joseph Eaton's building, recently moved across the street, is undergoing extensive repairs. A new hard-pine floor has been laid, town water put in, and sanitary improvements are to be added. Mr. W. G. Kimball has the work in charge.

Prest. Heustis of the Cowin Trading Co. is home from Cape Nome. Mr. Cushing, we are informed, returns in October with his partners. This company, we understand, have acquired a coal and gold field of many acres and are now working them. They write enthusiastically of their good luck.

"Getting a living" was the subject of a short address by Rev. A. W. Lorimer in the Baptist church on Sunday evening. His earnest and thoughtful remarks, which were supplemented by several members of the congregation, were most attentively listened to. During the evening a duet, "He'll wipe all tears away," was sweetly and tastefully rendered by Miss Gertrude Finley (soprano) and Miss Lena Tingley (contralto).

The heights will soon hear the sound of hammer and saw, for two new houses are to be built at once on Wollaston avenue, just above the church. The houses are to be of the most modern and approved style with all the modern improvements. Two double-apartment houses will be built, and will cost $4500 each. A Mrs. Snow and Miss Marion Snow of Cambridge are the owners. Mr. E. A. Snow of Tanager street is the architect, while the buildings have been contracted to Mr. Alex. Beaton, whose shop is on Park avenue. Mr. Beaton is a lucky man to receive these contracts, as they are fine ones.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Enterprise: The article in your issue of the 8th inst., relating to the proposed electric road from Woburn to Arlington is, in some respects, misleading. You say: "The opposition to the proposed new line is strong, and to interest our readers in the subject we have carefully gone over the grounds and have tried to find the sentiment of the people." If you had "carefully" gone among the people who should be, and are, the most interested in the subject, the people of Crescent hill, you would have found the majority of them in favor of the project. The people on the heights proper cannot, as a general thing, be expected to show as much interest in the matter. A few property owners located near "the foot of the rocks" may oppose having the terminus of the road there, fearing hoodlums and undesirable people would be carried there to rusticate and carouse. I feel that the people of the heights would be right in opposing the road if they were likely to be annoyed by marauders, but I believe they are unnecessarily alarmed, for the reason that people are not coming from Woburn to Arlington Heights to rusticate, they having ample facilities for this purpose nearer home—people who travel by this route will do so for business and social purposes. This proposed new road would be of considerable benefit to the people of the north-easterly part of Lexington, and help to develop that portion of the town which the Lexington, Lowell & Boston road does not accommodate. You say: "There is no one on Lowell street or on the hill who would care to pay five cents to ride a quarter of a mile." I can think of instances when people would be glad to pay five cents to ride "on the hill" or from the hill, if the road run as it should do, over the hill, along Westminster avenue. People would then rather pay five cents than pay the depot carriage fare of fifteen cents. You are right when you remark: "There are many points from which to view this question." The facts are just here: To make the proposed road of great benefit to the town of Arlington, instead of being carried to the "foot of the rocks" it should be carried along Bow street to Forest street, and a new street should be built to connect with existing streets to Medford street. The proposed new electric line could take this route, thereby helping to develop the slow-growing easterly part of Arlington, and consequently increasing the taxable property in that location. By this means a new and important avenue would be created which, in some respects, would be a relief to a portion of Mass. avenue. By the running of the new electric road to or connecting with a road to West Medford, the people in all parts of Arlington would be accommodated, from the fact that it would enable them to go to Medford, Malden, Everett, Revere, Beach, etc., by a more direct route than going via Boston, thereby saving time and furnishing the enjoyment of a very pleasant route. I should have liked to have spoken of other matters mentioned in your article, but as I have already taken up much space I will for the present rest here. PROGRESS.

The water supply has been so low for some time back that it has frequently had to be shut off to allow time to pump water from the deep well.

The committee on water supply held a meeting on Tuesday evening, but nothing definite was done. The public feeling seems to be that the only solution of the problem is to readjust the present piping system to adapt it to the use of the Metropolitan supply.

Congratulations are in order on the announcement of the engagement of Mr. Albert F. Flanders of Boston to Miss Lilla Norris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Norris of Lexington. Mr. Flanders formerly resided here, and the young couple have the best wishes of all.

Mr. A. C. Washburne, contractor and builder, has just completed the handsome new house on Mass. avenue, for Dr. Edward Rolfe, and is in every way a credit to him. The house, which has 13 rooms and two baths, is of the style known as modernized colonial, with bay windows and pillared verandah, and is otherwise equipped with modern requirements.

A pretty home wedding took place at the Reed homestead on Lowell street, just over the Arlington line, on Tuesday evening. The old homestead never looked more cheerful, it being lit from top to bottom. The contracting parties were Miss Mary Willard Reed and Prof. Edward F. Miller of Newton Center, who is a professor at the Institute of Technology. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Rider of Gloucester, and to which only the near relatives had been invited. The knot was tied at seven o'clock, while the reception was held from eight to nine o'clock, and was attended by nearly 100 guests. For over an hour Arlington Heights presented a busy scene with its innumerable hacks going to and from the steam trains and electric cars to carry those who were fortunate enough to receive an invitation. A canopy had been erected from the street to the front porch. The house decorations were lovely, and palms and ferns were lavishly displayed about the rooms. In the parlor, where the marriage took place, white and green were used with fine effect. The bride's gown was of white silk, trimmed with chiffon and applique silk with the usual tulle veil and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts of great variety. Messrs. DeWolfe of Cambridge, Belmont of Boston, and Johnston of Belmont, were the ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are to make Newton center their home.

The trustees of Robbins library at a meeting held on Monday evening voted to open the book stack room of the library to the public, beginning the following day. By this concession the public are granted most generous privileges, which we have no hesitation in saying will be respected and appreciated by all patrons of the library. Miss Newton and her assistants had up to that time completed the necessary arrangements, and on Tuesday the system was put in operation without in the least disturbing existing arrangements. By this admission to the stack room, patrons can now select any book they wish at their leisure, while those not desiring to exercise this privilege can still adhere to the card system. Of course care will have to be observed by those taking advantage of this personal selection to replace the books where they belong. Every facility is given in the selection of books in the different departments of literature, as the shelves are all properly labelled, as well as an alphabetical order of authorship being at hand. We have always had a profound admiration for Robbins library, its efficient librarian and her courteous staff of assistants, as well as for its able board of trustees.

A LITTLE SPACE.

A little space to sing and say,
A little love sweet holiday,
And then to sleep—to draw away!

A little space; the gold is gray,
And life is sad, sweet yesterday,
No eyes to weep, no prayers to pray.

Gather the violets while you may;
They will be sweet for love to lay
On the green grave of yesterday!

TRYING TO KEEP COOL.

A Story of a Summer Family Picnic.

"This is insufferable," said Briggs to his wife, "absolutely insufferable. I don't see how you stand it or why you stand it. If I didn't have to be down town all day I'd have the children out in the park or in the country such a day as this. I certainly wouldn't stay in an oven of a house when there are trees and grass and breezes to be found if you only go in search of them."

"But there surely is more comfort in remaining quietly here than there is in preparing for an outing and then tramping all over the country looking for a bit of unappropriated shade," protested Mrs. Briggs.

"Nonsense," replied Briggs. "Of course there is some work in getting ready, but the luxuries of this life are not to be had without labor. I tell you the country is the place, and we'll go to the country today. Just bustle around and get the children ready and we'll start."

"But where'll we go?" asked Mrs. Briggs.

"Anywhere," answered Briggs.

"The park?" suggested Mrs. Briggs.

"That's comparatively near, and—"

"Park nothing!" interrupted Briggs.

"We can run over to the park any afternoon when I happen to get home early, but I don't get a full holiday very often, and we want to take advantage of it. We'll get out where the cool breezes blow. Hurry now. We can get a train to Mulligan's grove at 10 o'clock, and some of the boys at the store are going out there with their families—nothing formal, you know; just an outing. I'll show you how to keep cool if you'll just hustle and put up a little lunch."

There was an hour or more of good hard work, as any one who ever has tried to start for a little outing knows, and some of the work fell to the lot of Briggs himself. He acted under the orders of Mrs. Briggs, who became general superintendent temporarily, and as a result when they were ready to start he had to change his collar and his negligee shirt.

"Whew!" he exclaimed, as he put a hammock over his shoulder and grabbed a lunch basket. "I didn't realize how hot it was. I'd have been a corpse before night if I'd tried to stay in this stuffy house."

"You wouldn't have been as hot at any time during the day as you are now," returned Mrs. Briggs, who was going on the outing under protest and didn't care who knew it.

"Perhaps not," replied Briggs, "but I wouldn't have been as cool and comfortable as I will be an hour from now, either. The trouble with you women is that you don't look far enough ahead. There comes our car," he added a few minutes later. "Hurry, or we'll miss it."

Briggs grabbed one of the children with his disengaged hand, and with the lunch basket in the other hand and the hammock over his shoulder started on a dog trot to head off the approaching car at the corner.

"Whew, it gets hotter every minute!" he exclaimed as he hung to a post and mopped his face with his handkerchief. "I tell you, we would just have smothered in that house today. Why, my clean collar is melted already."

He looked around for a seat, but a whole lot of people seemed to be taking an outing that day and there wasn't one to be had. Mrs. Briggs and the children were uncomfortably wedged in between hot and perspiring individuals and looked as if they thought he had rather the better of it standing up.

"I just about sweat myself to death in the crowd on the footboard," said Briggs when they were on the street again and about to take up the rest of their journey to the depot.

"How far have we got to walk now?" asked Mrs. Briggs.

"Only four blocks," answered Briggs. "Then we may hope to be decently comfortable. Come along! We've no time to waste."

Ten minutes later they were on a car with others going for an outing—a good many others. They had sweated at the ticket office, sweated in the crowd at the gate, and had been pushed and jostled and stepped on in reaching the car, but they all got seats—after a fashion. It is warm under a train shed in the best of circumstances. There is little circulation of air there, and when it comes to sitting next to a fat man or woman and holding a child in one's lap, a very fair imitation of the tortures of the infernal regions is experienced.

"This negligee shirt of mine," said Briggs, "looks as if I had worn it in swimming, but we'll have some comfort as soon as we get under way."

"If we don't start soon," returned Mrs. Briggs, "I shall faint. I simply cannot stand this stifling atmosphere."

And one of the children began to cry. They left the train with a sigh of relief. Before it started even the aisles had partly filled up, and everyone knows what enforced contact with sweated humanity is in a closed car.

"At any rate, we're here," said Briggs as he threw away his limp collar and loosened the neckband of his shirt. "Now for a cool spot. By jove!" he added, as he saw half a dozen parties scurrying away in the direction of the grove, "we'll have to run for it or all the best places will be taken."

"Well, you'll have to do the running," returned Mrs. Briggs with decision. "I don't intend to kill myself. I'll look after the children and you take the hammock and the lunch basket and go on ahead."

So Briggs ran a quarter of a mile, carrying weight for age, and succeeded in pre-empting a spot where two scrawny trees somewhat filtered the sun's rays, and even then he came near having to defend his location with physical force.

"Now, I'll go hunt up some of the boys I know," he said, when Mrs. Briggs and the children arrived.

"You'll do nothing of the sort," replied Mrs. Briggs promptly. "You'll put up the hammock first."

So he put up the hammock, not without some difficulty, for Dame Nature hadn't placed the trees as conveniently as she might have done.

"Now," he said, "I'll—"

"Now, you'll take this little tin pail and get some water," put in Mrs. Briggs. "We're all nearly dying of thirst."

"Now," said Briggs when he had brought the water, "I'll—"

"Now you'll help me put out the lunch," interrupted Mrs. Briggs. "It's nearly 1 o'clock, and the children are almost starved."

So he helped arrange the lunch and drove the ants away from it, and of course they found some things were lacking. Then he helped gather the remnants and the dishes together and put them back in the baskets, and after that he took the children over and bought them some pink lemonade and peanuts at a stand at the other end of the grounds, and gave them each a turn in the swing they found, and then finally he settled himself in the hammock.

"Now, this is what I call comfort," he said, as he slapped at the flies and the mosquitoes. "I'll rest here a little while and then I'll hunt up some of the boys I know. I didn't tell them I was coming, so they—"

"You'll rest there a little while," interrupted Mrs. Briggs in her annoying way, "and then you'll take the hammock down and start for the train. It leaves in three-quarters of an hour."

Briggs drew an armchair up in front of an open window and dropped wearily into it when he reached home.

"By George! but this is comfort," he said. "There's a right cool breeze blowing through here."

"Yes," returned Mrs. Briggs dryly. "Is comparatively comfortable between those two windows most of the time if one only keeps still long enough to notice it!"—Chicago Evening Post.
